

Sept 17, 2009

Mobile News Email Newsletter

中国日报

CHINA DAILY

Today's PaperSubscribe

User: Password: Login Register

环球在线 中国在线 英语点津 新闻图片 新漫网

Home China BizChina World Regional Metro Opinion Sports Show Biz Life Culture Forum Video E-Shop

Site Search Go Advanced

Video> Culture

Home

News

Culture

Interview

Focus

Slides

Photos

Beijing 798 Biennial

(chinadaily.com.cn)
Updated: 2009-08-18 16:18

Comments(0) Print Mail

Get Flash Player

Beijing's 798 art district is hosting a series of contemporary art exhibitions beginning on August 15, 2009. Known as the Beijing Biennial, the festival will bring together over 70 Chinese and international artists.

The program's artistic director, Zhu Qi, and its curatorial director of international content, Marc Hungerbuhler, gave short speeches, and the ambassadors of Germany, Chile and Korea, officials of Beijing government were also at presence.

The theme of the event is "constellations." It comes from the idea that constellations are made up of stars that seem close, but are in fact extremely far away from each other. The exhibit will explore complex questions of distance and position by examining the ways in which migration and marginalized people interact and create cross-cultural identities.

Their exhibits will include painting, sculpture, photography, video, installation, performance, sound works, media art, and site-specific public art.

The biennale will last until September 12, 2009.

Script: Huang Lan | Video: Lou Yi

Comments(0) Print Mail

Popular in 24 Hours

- Models compete in New Silk Road contest in Sanya
- 'Pillars of National Unity' set up in Tian'anmen Square
- China wants WTO talks on US tariffs
- One year after Lehman Brothers collapsed
- Dinosaur fossils back home
- Hu to meet leaders in New York ahead of G20
- Deadbeat debtors buying border troubles
- Federer stunned by del potro in US Open final
- A(H1N1) flu outbreak reported in Heilongjiang University
- Body art at international contest

Popular in 1 Week

Photo

Video

The new slip-edition, with four broadsheet colored pages, is released from Monday to Friday with the original 24-page newspaper in the Beijing area.

China

More than 100 craftsmen took part in a traditional handicraft competition in Kaili, southwest China's Guizhou Province to showcase their skills of making embroidery and silver wares etc.

Bizchina

China's battery and electric carmaker BYD Co is aiming to become the nation's largest passenger car manufacturer ahead of its targeted 2015 schedule.

Multimedia

Continuing to rebuild and recover, Afghanistan struggles to grapple with poverty, the Taliban